DETAILED ACTIONClaim Objections

Claims 1-22, 31 and 32 are objected to because of the following informalities. The use of the term "attachment device" is misleading since Applicant is referring to a hole. Appropriate correction is required.

Double Patenting

The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. A nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting rejection is appropriate where the conflicting claims are not identical, but at least one examined application claim is not patentably distinct from the reference claim(s) because the examined application claim is either anticipated by, or would have been obvious over, the reference claim(s). See, e.g., In re Berg, 140 F.3d 1428, 46 USPQ2d 1226 (Fed. Cir. 1998); In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) or 1.321(d) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent either is shown to be commonly owned with this application, or claims an invention made as a result of activities undertaken within the scope of a joint research agreement.

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

Claims 1-27 are provisionally rejected on the ground of nonstatutory obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 10-12, 14-16, 19-20, 24 and 33-40 of copending Application No. 10/201,485.

Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the difference between the claims of the present application and the claims of the copending application is that the claims of the copending application include many more elements and are thus more specific. Thus the invention of the claims of the copending application is in effect a "species" of the "generic" invention of the claims of the present application. It has been held that the generic invention is "anticipated" by the "species." See In re Goodman, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993). Since the claims of the present application are anticipated by the claims of the copending application, they are not patentably distinct from the claims of the copending application.

This is a provisional obviousness-type double patenting rejection because the conflicting claims have not in fact been patented.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3, 5-11, 13-18 and 20-33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Besemer et al. (US 5,879,401).

Besemer et al. discloses a system to provide alignment of an inner cup or "trial shell" 15 in an augmentation shell or "acetabular prosthesis" 40 with a bore 44 wherein the trial shell 15 has an elongated track or "path" 33 for placement of an attachment member or "screw" 36, the axis of the screw defining a first axis of rotation or "first degree of freedom" (col. 1, lines 4-7, lines 52-67, col. 2, lines 1-15 and lines 46-67).

Regarding claim 8, Besemer et al. disclose multiple shells 15, i.e., a first trial shell, a second trial shell and a third trial shell wherein each shell has an attachment device 33 that is used to place an attachment member or reference screw 36 in order to connect the respective shell 15 to the acetabular cup. Besemer et al. further disclose that each trial shell 15 has a groove 24 in which a tab 27 is located to permit rotation of the shell about a pin 20 to set the anteversion angle (Figs. 1-2, col. 2, lines 46-67, col. 3 and col. 4, lines 1-67).

The method steps of claims 23-39 are inherently performed during normal use of the Besemer et al. system for determining the appropriate combination of placement angles to orient an acetabular cup component during hip replacement surgery.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
